8283

In 1982-83 the Swedish post-punk pioneers The Bizarre Orkestra made several recordings before the band's first vinyl release, the EP Land (released by Ambush Records, 1984). The first tracks were recorded in their hometown Gävle, followed by additional recordings produced by Thomas Di Leva with the studio wizard Johan Vävare behind the board at Decibel Studios in Stockholm.

All songs on the new album Unreleased 8283 (including the song En Fallande Stjärna with its mesmerizing "Twin Peaks bass" - recorded seven years before Angelo Badalamenti's soundtrack to the tv-series) have until now remained unreleased, but are now released as a part of the label COMEDIA's reissue program.
